

Religion and Politics (LEAT1570)

Introduction

“Humanistic-leadership” Project: “Re-evaluation of All Values” –
A historical, philosophical, political and social innovative entrepreneurship project

God bless America? And what about the rest of the world?

We are all acutely aware of who is the current president of the United States. Some people argue that he could not have won his election without the support of evangelical Christians. The separation of church and state is stated in the Constitution and yet religion influences American politics to a degree not seen in other developed countries. Peter Youngblood, PhD student in Religious Studies, will share his thoughts on this matter and discuss the role of religion in politics in the United States today. At the same time, we will shed light on the interplay between religion and politics, from 15th century Europe to today's globalised world. Bring along genuine curiosity, a good deal of respect and openness and join our refreshingly casual take on such a serious topic!
