Parent Workshop

Helping Your Gifted Child Bloom!

To parent a gifted child is to follow an extraordinary, unfamiliar path of delights and questions, opportunities and challenges. This hands-on workshop examines the role of parents as guides, curators, and supporters of their high ability children. Topics range from nurturing curiosity and problem-solving skills to balance academic pursuits with time to play. Parents leave the three hours with activities to take home with them, as well as a deeper awareness of what lies ahead.

This workshop is provided by Johns Hopkins Center for Talented Youth (CTY). CTY, a world leader in gifted education since 1979, is a nonprofit organization dedicated to identifying and developing the talents of academically advanced pre-college students around the world.
