Profile of the Speaker:

Dr Sylvia LIU

Centre for Advancement in Inclusive and Special Education (CAISE)
Faculty of Education, The University of Hong Kong

Dr Sylvia LIU acquired her doctorate degree in Education (EdD) in the University of Hong Kong, focusing on gifted education and talent development. Dr LIU has been studying how interactive team games develop social skills and individual talents since 2004. One of the research contributions is the learning concept model, "Social Star Mirror Model" (「社交閃星星」), which systematically uses interactive games to enhance social skills, and confirms that interactive games bring positive and sustainable results to gifted children and other school children on their social communication and self-discipline capabilities.

Dr LIU successfully curated the "Pillars of Society" to train children with face-to-face interactive games. The scheme was funded by the Hong Kong Education Bureau's Quality Education Fund in 2006 and has been implemented in primary schools since then. In 2016, it was further subsidized to implement the "No Play No Gain" Kindergarten Social and Emotional Learning Project.

Dr LIU has been practicing for more than 10 years in kindergartens, primary schools, secondary schools and universities. She is experienced in teacher, parent and student training. She is enthusiastic about social services and is often invited to work as a game education consultant, design train-the-trainer programmes and coordinate projects.
