

Student Emotional Support Session

(PGSSS0024)

Restless, anxious, angry, helpless, heartbroken, horror-stricken...

Is it a portrayal of your recent mood?

Recently, emergent social conflicts have been arisen in Hong Kong.

Whether you have received relevant information via media or participated in the protest, as a member of our society, your emotions will inevitably be affected.

After a major turmoil, we might not be able to regulate our emotions immediately, and the disagreements among our acquaintances will make our emotional feelings become more complex.

In view of this, the clinical psychologist and professional social worker of the academy have arranged the following session to provide support for our student members.
