

How Close Are Politics and International Relations to Your Life? (GSGW1015)

Introduction	The ancient Greek philosopher Aristotle has claimed that “Man is by nature a political animal”, which means man could not live without politics by nature. Sun Yat-sen has also claimed that “Politics is a matter of managing public affairs”. In recent years, “I hate politics!” has gone viral in mass media. Does the claim that one “hates politics” rationalize his/her political indifference? The speaker, Mr Sebastien FUNG, is an Honorary Lecturer of the Department of Politics and Public Administration, The University of Hong Kong. His teaching and research interests include Sino-Japanese relations, international relations of East Asia, etc. In this workshop, we will try to lift the mystical veil of politics and international relations.
