

Inside Out Series: Self Concept (II)

(F2IOS002W)

Introduction

Inside Out Series is a workshop series related to affective education, it covers topics like self-concept, self-management and social relationship of gifted students. This series aims at fostering gifted students' whole-person development from the inside out by enabling them to understand themselves, enhance their self-management skills, and eventually build positive social relationships with the outside world.

A series of 3 interrelated workshops will be held from September to November, one in each month. In the workshops, you will be able to learn on various topics related to self-concept of gifted students, including a list of giftedness theories, explore our strengths and weaknesses, view from others' perspective etc, and mostly importantly, understand more about ourselves.

Developing a personal identity is an important developmental task, and it may be a particular challenge for gifted students. Gifted students, like any other teens, develop an identity through hearing what others say about them, identifying what they feel and value, and thinking about themselves in relationship with others. Knowing and being comfortable with the self can help gifted students to accomplish developmental milestones smoothly. As a gifted student, how well do you understand about yourself? Some might say self-acceptance is about recognising and accepting one's strengths and weaknesses, so what are the common strengths and weaknesses that gifted students share? What is the relationship between attribution theory and giftedness? We will be having the second session of this series of workshops and learning how to accept ourselves, understand our strengths and weaknesses, and examine the attribution factors for success and failure.
