

Life as a Quant (E2GSG033W)

Introduction Are you interested in being a quant? Ever wonder what they do? In this workshop, Eric will share some memories and experience both as a student and as a quant.

Eric has more than ten years of experience as a buy-side quantitative analyst, working in areas from derivatives modelling to quantitative trading. He completed his 11+ education in the UK and has worked a few years in London before returning to settle in Hong Kong. He calculates that his life so far is evenly spent between HK and UK. He currently works in an emerging markets hedge fund.

What types of quants are there in finance? What is a typical day like? What skills and qualities would be of value? What are the “exciting topics” in finance? Is it more rewarding in academia or industry? We will address these questions and more...
