

Inside Out Series: Self-Management IV (F2IOS008W)

Introduction of the Workshop

Many gifted students are highly sensitive to their environment and react with heightened emotional and behavioural responses; anger is an emotion that commonly encountered by many gifted students, and we must understand that it points to an unmet need. The true goal of anger management is not to suppress feelings of anger, but rather to understand the message behind the emotion and express it in a healthy way without losing control.

The workshop introduces Nonviolent Communication (NVC) as a practical approach to cope with anger and resolve conflicts. Applying NVC, helps participants realise both anger and conflict are not so much the result of what others say or do, but the way we judge others by what they say or do. Participants would learn to listen and speak which lead them to give from the heart, connect with themselves and allows their natural compassion to flourish.

Introduction of the Series

The 'Inside Out Series' is a workshop series related to affective education, it covers topics like self-concept, self-management and social relationships of gifted students. This series aims at fostering gifted students' whole-person development from the inside out by enabling them to understand themselves, enhance their self-management skills, and eventually build positive social relationships with the outside world. In the workshops of the Self-Management Series, you will learn how you are influenced by conformity, the difference between healthy and unhealthy perfectionism, some emotional, stress and time management skills etc. If you are interested in understanding self-management, don't miss this opportunity. You are also encouraged to complete the whole series for mastering the self-management skills progressively.
