

Talk: TV Drama Screenwriter Sharing Session (CLLT1111)

Introduction

The TV drama screenplay is a kind of practical writing, it provides reading materials for the actors, directors, photographers, wardrobe stylists, make-up artist, props makers and other production crew. Since the crew is from various education and cultural backgrounds, the script must be easy to read and provide enough room for imagination. At the same time the script is also igniting and able to fascinate the users, so that the entire production crew can devote themselves to the scene creation. This talk aims at explaining the creative process of the drama script by adapting an easy-to-difficult approach, from the character development and plot arrangement, scene setting / shots divides and even the application of dialogue design, to understand the drama script crafting skills.
