

Life Education Series: Personal Attitudes, Beliefs & Values (PGSLE021920)

Introduction

Animal rights and welfare are issues people always ignore. News on animals being killed and abused, whether for food or business, or even for providing entertainment for people, are common. This talk aims to broaden students' personal horizons by exploring the relationship between animals and humans, and to enhance students' understanding of animal conservation work. The founder of the Society for the Protection of Abandoned Animals will be invited as the guest speaker to share her experiences and struggles in saving abandoned animals during the past years.

This life education series will explore on issues related to personal attitudes, beliefs and values through guest speaker sharing and discussion. We hope participants will be inspired and will reflect on their own attitudes and values.
