

Africa-China Relations (from an African Perspective) (HUMT1570)

Introduction

Join us for a lecture, sharing and interactive session where we explore the complicated and continually developing relationship between China and Africa.

From historical links up to the modern Belt and Road initiative, we will be sure to discover new stories and perspectives. We will have a look at neocolonialism and various economic policy models deployed by the West and the East, while also recognising African agency and hearing from what Africans see and think.

Our guest speaker from Zimbabwe will guide us through the topic from the perspectives of economics and anthropology, together with a good dose of humour.
